Salve Regina University Brings Surviving Skin and Cancer Awareness to Campus

Surviving Skin and Meghan Rothschild, a Massachusetts cancer awareness advocate, announced today that the organization will be appearing at Salve Regina University for a skin cancer awareness seminar.

The presentation, being put on by the Health Education Department, will be held on Thursday, February 3rd at 7pm in the O'Hare Bazarsky Lecture Hall.

"I'm honored to be invited to speak to the Salve Regina student body for the third year in a row," Rothschild said of the event. "This is an extremely important topic among the college age group considering melanoma is the second most common cancer among young people ages 15-29."

Meghan Rothschild, founder of Surviving Skin (www.SurvivingSkin.org), will speak on the topic of melanoma, indoor tanning, and the dangers of UV exposure. Her presentation incorporates her personal battle with stage 2 melanoma, along with prevention tips, warning signs, and ways to advocate for skin cancer awareness.

This event is part of the Eucerin sponsored Surviving Skin Speaking Tour. More information on Eucerin and Surviving Skin can be obtained by contacting Meghan Rothschild.

About Surviving Skin

Surviving Skin (www.SurvivingSkin.org) was founded by Meghan Rothschild, two years ago in efforts to educate people about the dangers of melanoma. Traveling the New England states, Rothschild is committed to educating anyone who will listen about this deadly, yet easily preventable disease. A six year survivor herself, Rothschild lived through stage two melanoma, after experiencing a horrific surgery that left her missing 8 lymph nodes and a large area of skin on her stomach.
